

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is a control technique for a data storage system, for performing exclusive control of duplicated volumes generated among separately established storage devices having a remote copy function, and uniquely determining the host device having exclusive control of duplicated volumes.